

On Sun, May 24, 2009 at 2:13 PM,
<jeremy@sodaent.com> wrote:

John,

Sorry I missed you and jill friday as it was my last work day and had lots of last minute things to do including my doctor which was stressful. I had the realtor in yesterday and he was really impressed with everything he saw, so much that he thinks our chances are good to hit the ground running by this coming weekend.

He has booked a photographer to come in wednesday to shoot the house for the listing, so as I was told you would be finishing monday so that should be fine.

My agent is eager to meet you and I will send an intro email that you can get acquainted as he works for Sotheby's and is always in need of relationships with company's like YHMC. (Your HandyMan Can)

Thanks for the amazing work, let me know your thoughts on Monday. There is one small thing that I did not get to and that is the small piece of kitchen cabinet that needs a small piece of white paint on the top by the washer/dryer would be awesome.

Let's chat soon and again thanks to you and Jill for your amazing help and kindness as we get through this period.

Jeremy

Sent via BlackBerry from T-Mobile